Many of us know about Title IX as “the law that made school sports more equitable for girls and women.” Yet, there’s also a lot more to it.

Sexual harassment, which includes acts of sexual violence such as rape, sexual battery and sexual coercion, is a form of sex discrimination prohibited by Title IX. It creates a hostile environment that has no place on our campus. And it’s something we take very seriously as we work to keep you safe and to respond effectively and immediately when you’re in trouble.

Our Title IX Coordinator

Our campus Title IX Coordinator is available to you and responsible for:

- Overseeing all Title IX complaints and investigations to provide prompt, fair and equitable resolutions
- Being available to meet with students, provide support and answer questions
- Working with other college officials
- Coordinating training, education and communication pertaining to Title IX
- Ensuring that our institution carries out its Title IX responsibilities

You can talk with any of us here on campus if you or someone you know is experiencing sexual harassment/sexual violence. We’ll provide support and put you in touch with the Title IX Coordinator and other resources right away!

We’re all here to deter gender-based discrimination and make our campus a safer, more welcoming place to be.

Sexual harassment, which includes acts of sexual violence such as rape, sexual battery and sexual coercion, is a form of sex discrimination prohibited by Title IX.

“No person in the United States shall, on the basis of sex be excluded from participation in, be denied benefit of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.”

– Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972
Notice of Non-Discrimination

We don’t tolerate discrimination and here’s what it means regarding Title IX:

- Our institution doesn’t discriminate on the basis of sex within educational programs and activities, in accordance with Title IX requirements
- Inquiries about the application of Title IX may be referred to our Title IX Coordinator at (903) 782-0304 or the Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights at ocr@ed.gov or (800) 421-3481
- Prohibited sex discrimination covers sexual harassment, including sexual violence (see the next four pages to discover what types of conduct constitute sexual harassment/sexual violence)

Policies & Disciplinary Procedures: Our Promise to You

- We’ll investigate Title IX complaints in a prompt, fair and impartial manner
- We’ll take steps to prevent the recurrence of any harassment and to correct its discriminatory effects on the complainant and others, if appropriate
- Both parties can present witnesses and other evidence
- Mediation will not be used to resolve sexual assault complaints
- The time frame for a grievance investigation will typically take up to 60 days, unless it’s particularly complicated
- Both parties will be notified of the outcome of the complaint

Title IX Complaints & Criminal Investigations

If a case of alleged sexual harassment or sexual violence occurs, Paris Junior College will promptly and equitably investigate under Title IX to determine what occurred. We’ll also take appropriate steps to resolve the situation.

A Title IX investigation is different from any law enforcement investigation.

You have the right to file a Title IX sex discrimination complaint with our institution in addition to filing a criminal complaint.

Our Title IX Coordinator and other support can help you decide the best course of action for you by describing our grievance procedures. Please ask!
Sexual Harassment

Sexual harassment of student can deny or limit, on the basis of sex, the student’s ability to participate in or to receive benefits, services or opportunities from the institution’s programs. Therefore, it’s a form of sex discrimination prohibited by Title IX.

What constitutes sexual harassment? According to the Department of Education’s Office for Civil Rights, it is conduct that:

- Is sexual in nature
- Is unwelcome
- Denies or limits a student’s ability to participate in or benefit from a school’s education program

See the box for examples of sexual conduct.

Here are some other key points:

- Sexual harassment can take different forms depending on the harasser and the nature of the harassment.
- College employees, other students and non-employee third parties, such as a visiting speaker, may carry out this conduct.
- The conduct can be verbal, nonverbal or physical.
- Both male and female students can be victims of sexual harassment, and the harasser and the victim may be of the same sex.
- Sexual harassment can occur in any school program or activity and can take place in institutional facilities or at off-campus locations, such as school-sponsored retreat or training program at another location.

Sexual Conduct

Examples of sexual conduct include:

- Making sexual propositions or pressuring students for sexual favors
- Unwelcome sexual advances
- Writing graffiti of a sexual nature
- Displaying or distributing sexually explicit drawings, pictures or written materials
- Performing sexual gestures or touching oneself sexually in front of others
- Telling sexual or dirty jokes
- Spreading sexual rumors or rating other students as to sexual activity or performance
- Circulating or showing emails or websites of a sexual nature
Instances of Sexual Harassment

Some examples of sexual harassment on campus include:

- A faculty member conditions a student’s grade on submission to his/her sexual advances and then gives a poor evaluation for rejecting the advances
- A drama director does not give a student a part in a play because they did not respond to sexual overtures from the director
- A professor who supervises the college newspaper continually and inappropriately touches a student editor in a sexual manner, causing the student to resign from the newspaper staff
- A faculty member withdraws approval of research funds for his/her assistant because they rebuffed the advances
- A graduate teaching assistant repeatedly asks a student to stay after class and attempts to engage discussions about sex and personal experiences while they are alone in the classroom, causing the student to stop coming to class

Two Forms of Sexual Harassment

Quid Pro Quo Harassment. Occurs when a campus employee causes a student to believe he/she must admit to unwelcome sexual conduct in order to participate in a school program or activity, or causes a student to believe that the employee will make an educational decision based on whether or not the student submits to unwelcome sexual conduct. It doesn’t matter whether the student resists and suffers the threatened harm or submits to and avoids the threatened harm for it to be considered harassment.

For example:
A faculty member threatens to fail a student unless the student agrees to date him/her.

Hostile Environment Harassment. Occurs when unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature is so severe, persistent or pervasive that it affects a student’s ability to participate in or benefit from an education program or activity, or creates an intimidating, threatening or abusive educational environment.

For example:
Someone repeatedly makes sexually suggestive comments or sexually assaults a student.
Sexual Violence

Sexual violence is a form of sexual harassment, prohibited by Title IX, which includes conduct that is criminal in nature. There are many types of sexual violence, not all of which include physical contact between the victim and perpetrator. They include sexual harassment, threats and peeping.

Examples of sexual violence that include physical contact are:

- Rape
- Sexual assault
- Sexual battery
- Sexual coercion (see box on next page)
- Unwanted touching
- Dating violence
- Sexually motivated stalking

Sexual violence refers to sexual acts perpetrated against a person’s will where consent is not obtained or where a person is incapable of giving consent due to his/her use of alcohol or other drugs.

Anyone can experience sexual violence, but most victims are female. And the majority of campus sexual assaults occur when women are incapacitated, primarily by alcohol.

The person responsible for the violence is typically male and is usually someone known to the victim (e.g. friend, coworker, neighbor, significant other, family member). This person is often called a “perpetrator” or someone who harms someone else.

An estimated 20% to 25% of college women and 6.1% of men in the U.S. have experienced an attempted or completed rape during their college career.

There is help available to you if you’re the victim of sexual violence - and there’s no reason to be embarrassed, ashamed or to think you won’t be believed. Inform the Title IX Coordinator so you can get the assistance you need.

The Role Alcohol Plays

On average, at least 50% of campus sexual assaults involve alcohol. It’s the main drug used by perpetrators of sexual violence. Alcohol:

- Can impair a perpetrator’s judgment so he/she disregards indications that a person doesn’t want to engage in sexual activity
- Can impair a victim’s judgment so he or she is less likely to heed the risk cues
- Can increase the expectancies of what will happen when we drink
- Perpetrators may use alcohol as an excuse for their actions
- Victims who drink and are then assaulted may be blamed for “letting” the assault occur/or sending mixed messages, even though it’s never their fault

Keep all of these things in mind when making choices about alcohol.
Important Steps

Professionals at various universities suggest that students who have been sexually assaulted:

- Get to a place where you feel safe
- Seek a friend you can trust
- Don’t shower, bathe any part of your body, douche, urinate, defecate, use medications or brush your teeth, if possible
- Stay in the clothes you are wearing or, if you’ve already changed, bring clothes, sheets and anything that was in contact with you during the assault in a paper bag (not plastic!) or wrapped in a clean sheet- don’t clean or straighten the area
- Don’t touch anything the accused may have touched or left behind- this physical evidence can help if a criminal charge is pursued
- Get medical help to check for internal injuries you might not be aware of, treat external injuries, be treated for certain STDs, and get information about HIV/AIDS and pregnancy prevention
- Consider having a rape kit done at the hospital- even if you don’t think you want to press charges, having a rape kit allows you to have evidence collected should you change your mind later
- Seek counseling support
- Consider your legal options and ask questions for clarification

Sexual Coercion

Using pressure, force, alcohol or other drugs to have sexual contact with someone against his/her will is considered sexual coercion.

You may be experiencing it if:

- You feel pressure from your date, partner or friend (“Sex is how you can prove you love me — everyone is doing it”)
- Someone buys you gifts or spends money on you to make you feel like you “owe” him or her sex
- There are times you don’t want to have sex but feel like you can’t say “no” (“We’ve had sex before, so you can’t say no now”)
- You’ve had a sexual experience that left you frightened, angry or feeling guilty
- You had sex without using a condom because your partner didn’t want to use one

Sexual coercion is not okay and is considered sexual violence.

In order to eliminate a hostile environment, prevent the recurrence of a sexual harassment/violence incident and address its effects, you as a complainant are entitled to remedies that include, but are not limited to, the following…

- The assurance that you and the alleged perpetrator will not attend the same classes
- Alternate housing arrangements in a different residence hall.
- The availability of counseling services
- Access to sexual assault response team advocates
- The availability of medical services
- Academic support services, such as tutoring
- Arranging for you to re-take a course or withdraw from a class without penalty, including ensuring that any changes don’t adversely affect your academic record
- The review of any disciplinary action taken against you (such as if you skipped a class because the alleged perpetrator was enrolled and you wanted to avoid contact) to see if there is a connection between the harassment and the misconduct that may have resulted in you being disciplined
- The knowledge that you can file a complaint with local law enforcement at any time and that you have the option to be assisted by campus personnel in notifying such authorities

You also have the right…

- To present your case, which includes the right to adequate, reliable and impartial investigation of complaints; the right to have an equal opportunity to present witnesses and other evidence; and the right to the same appeal process, for both parties
- To be notified of the time frame within which your school will conduct a full investigation of the complaint, the parties will be notified of the outcome of the complaint and the parties may file an appeal, if applicable
- To have your complaint decided using a preponderance of the evidence standard (i.e. it’s more likely than not that sexual harassment or violence occurred)
- To be notified in writing of the outcome of the complaint
  — You’re entitled to information about the sanction imposed on the perpetrator when the sanction directly relates to you
  — The school can’t require you to abide by a non-disclosure agreement, in writing or otherwise, because the Clery Act requires that both parties be informed of the outcome, including sanction information, of any institutional proceeding alleging of sex offense
- To know that you can end the informal process at any time and begin the formal stage of the complaint process
If you want to learn more about your rights or if you believe your institution is violating Federal law, you can contact the U.S. Department of Education, Office for Civil Rights, at ocr@ed.gov or (800) 421-3481. You can also fill out a complaint form online through the Department of Education www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/complaintintro.html.

Confidentiality Concerns

When it comes to confidentiality, we’ll be up front with you.

- We’ll take all reasonable steps to investigate and respond in a manner consistent with a student’s confidentiality request. And we’ll let you know if we can’t ensure confidentiality.
- If a student requests confidentiality and decides not to press charges in a sexual violence case, an anonymous report of the incident must still be made in order to comply with the Clery Act (campus crime reporting).
- On-campus counselors and advocates-like those working or volunteering in sexual assault centers, victim advocacy offices, women’s and health centers, as well as licensed and pastoral counselors-can talk with a survivor in confidence.
- If the safety of others in the community could be at risk, the good of the whole may need to outweigh one student’s confidentiality request.

Protective interim steps may be taken to protect the complainant before the final outcome of the investigation is reached.

You don’t have to wait!

You have the option to avoid contact with the alleged perpetrator. We’ll talk with you about this right away.
If you are a victim of sexual harassment or sexual violence, you can fully expect our support to meet your varied needs. Here are some of the ways that student advocates—from coaches to residence hall staff to counseling, student life and other staff—can help you…

- Provide information about campus and community services
- Make referrals, as desired
- Go to the hospital and/or law enforcement office with you
- Help with filing a report
- Assist you in getting a protective order or other remedies such as housing and class schedule changes
- Provide an empathetic listening ear
- Help with academic concerns
- Assist you in preparing for judicial meetings—and accompanying you, if requested
- Meet with you on a regular basis to follow up
- Keep track of the details
- Assure you that the assault was not your fault

Responding to Retaliation

Title IX protects all college students from retaliation if they report sexual harassment or violence. If the alleged perpetrator or his/her friends taunt you, call you names or harass you in any way, report immediately!

Our Title IX Coordinator and others are there as resources to take strong, responsive action if any retaliation or new incidents of harassment occur.

And we’ll be sure to keep letting you know that you’re never alone. We can connect you with resources that you need—they are plentiful here within our campus and community.

Helping a Friend

Do you have a friend who has experienced sexual harassment or sexual violence? In order to help him/her in the best ways possible, you can:

- Listen with compassion
- Direct him/her to available resources
- Not take everything on your shoulders

Getting the appropriate, trained professionals involved is the best thing you can do to help a friend get the real help he or she may need.
How Bystanders Can Intervene

Every campus has a population of bystanders who support sexual violence. They may not mean to do so, yet by not intervening when they see something happening, not reporting actions or dismissing certain behaviors, they are essentially sending a message to perpetrators that their actions are okay.

Proactive Bystanders Strategies

In order to be a proactive bystander who helps prevent cases of sexual harassment or sexual violence, you can:

- Believe violence is unacceptable and say it out loud
- Treat people with respect
- Speak up when you hear people making statements that blame victims
- Talk with male friends about confronting violence against women
- Encourage female friends to trust their instincts
- Be a knowledge resource for victims
- Don’t laugh at sexist jokes or comments
- Look out for friends at parties and bars
- Educate yourself and your friends
- Use campus resources
- Attend an awareness event
- Empower victims to tell their stories

Reactive Bystanders Strategies

In order to be a reactive bystander who positively intervenes in instances of sexual harassment or sexual violence, you can:

- Get campus police or other authorities involved
- Tell someone else
- Get help
- Ask a friend in a potentially dangerous situation if he/she wants to leave
- Make sure he/she gets home safely
- Ask a victim if he/she is okay
- Provide options and a listening ear
- Call the campus or local counseling/crisis center for support and options

In compliance with Title IX, Paris Junior College does not deny or limit any student or employee the ability to participate in or benefit from any program offered by the institution on the basis of sex or gender.
